

An Important Forum on Communications Options for Indian Tribes: July 16 & 17, 2008

Come to the Federal Communications Commission's Indian Telecommunications Initiative (ITI) forum in Salt Lake City, Utah. This vital forum is sponsored by the National Tribal Telecommunications Association (NTTA)*, NCAI and other organizations in collaboration with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Learn about:

- How Tribal communities are solving their communications needs
- How to become your own Tribal telecommunications provider
- What resources are available to Tribes to meet their communications needs
- How to make the transition from analog to digital TV in February 2009
- How to comply with requirements for new tribal broadcast licenses
- What the FCC is doing in telecommunications policy that will affect Tribes
- How to exercise Tribal telecommunications consumer rights
- How to leverage regulatory (universal service) funds for Tribal connectivity

Meet Tribal leaders, communications experts and Federal Communications Commission officials to share information and network with resource providers and vendors.

At the ITI, attend a policy roundtable luncheon hosted by the National Tribal Telecommunications Association (NTTA), July 16th, 12:00 - 1:00 p.m. at the Indian Walk-in Center. * *

For more information on the ITI forum, contact: Shana Barehand, Tribal Liason to the FCC
(202) 418-0385
shana.barehand@fcc.gov
or visit www.fcc.gov/indians.

*For more information on the National Tribal Telecommunications Association, contact:
Derek White, Chairman
(505) 610-0113
dewhite@gilanet.net
or visit www.nationaltribaltelecom.org